Dear Ms. Dortch:

On March 1, 2018, Paula Boyd, Michael Daum, and Paul Garnett of Microsoft Corporation; Haiyun Tang, CEO and Founder of Adaptrum, Inc.; and I met with Commissioner Brendan Carr and Jamie Susskind, Chief of Staff to Commissioner Carr. During the meeting, Microsoft and Adaptrum discussed the deployment of Microsoft's Rural Airband Initiative, which has the potential to bring wireless broadband to currently unserved or underserved rural areas across the country. To allow for such expansive deployment, we requested that the Commission resolve a set of issues discussed in Petitions for Reconsideration¹ and adopt policies that maximize spectral efficiency to improve broadband access in rural communities, including increasing power and antenna heights in rural areas. Specifically, we discussed the need to resolve the Channel 37 and Database Accuracy proceedings as soon as possible to provide regulatory certainty for all involved. In addition, we discussed the economics of Adaptrum's chip design and manufacturing process and the need for regulatory certainty regarding the available spectrum for rural broadband to foster continued investment and increased participation in the Rural Airband Initiative.

¹ See Response and Opposition to Petitions for Reconsideration of Microsoft Corporation, ET Docket No. 14-165, GN Docket No. 12-268 (Feb. 29, 2016); Reply in Support of Petition for Reconsideration of Microsoft Corporation, ET Docket No. 14-165, GN Docket No. 12-268 (Mar. 10, 2016).
